TONGUE TAMERS—Success Standards

“WHAT IF, right at this very moment, I am living up to my full potential?” stated Jane Wagner (born February 2, 1935, noted American writer, humorist, director and producer). This is a terrible thought for us to contemplate.

TONGUE TAMERS 5228 Toastmasters Club defies any individual to remain static—failing to grow or mature.

AS A GROUP we are resolved to develop our communication and leadership skills. We’re determined to support each other in learning better listening and discerning skills. We help each other to sharpen our reasoning abilities.

On the way, we enjoy fun-filled yet well-planned meetings that further each members’ self-development.

OUR MEMBERS’ GOALS ARE AS DIVERSE as each individual. One has said, “I joined to overcome an overpowering shyness unsuited to my business and personal needs.”

Others have related how their employer promoted them only to “threw them off the end of the dock,” as it were, when required to sell a product or brief groups. Still others just want to better understandings with family members and friends.

Find out more when you visit our club.

Education

Vice President

Your VP Education sends you a weekly Club Meeting Agenda, by which roles are selected through a computer program to ensure each member has an opportunity to assume all.

You also receive new-member orientation and tracking of your leadership and communication goals as set out in your manuals. You can then become eligible for your Competent Communicator and future awards.

In other words, your VP-Ed stands ready to help you maintain your Toastmasters goals.

Membership

Vice President

VP-Membership is much more than a membership recruiter. This officer is essential to helping new members: You’ll receive your “New Member Kit” and be assigned your own Club Mentor, who helps you successfully travel through your new communication and leadership venture.

After you’re introduced to all members, you’ll have a cheering section responding to your first speech, the “Ice Breaker.” This means that from your first step, your path is paved for success.
